DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-5, and 8-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Teichner et al. (7,428,022).

Regarding claim 1, Teichner discloses a video reception system showing a first tuning means (130), a first demodulating means (136), a second tuning means (140), a second demodulating means (146), and a third demodulating means (134, 144).

Regarding claims 2 and 3, the input RF signals in Teichner are intended to use in different environment (col. 3, lines 60-64). When used in home or office environments, the RF sources can be provided from a terrestrial signal source or a cable signal source.

Regarding claim 4, Teichner shows a first analog demodulator (136), a second analog demodulator (146), and a digital demodulator (134, 144).

Regarding claim 5, Teichner shows a first AGC signal (132), a second AGC signal (142), and a third AGC signal (132, 142). The third AGC signal is generated either by the digital demodulator 134 or the digital demodulator 144. It depends which is being selected.

Regarding claims 8-16, see the corresponding rejections as set forth above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 7 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Teichner et al. (7,428,022).

Regarding claims 7 and 18, Teichner does not disclose the IF switching means as claimed. In any event, it is recognized that the digital selector 110 in Teichner is essentially the equivalent of the IF switching means as claimed except that Teichner performs the switching operation after the IF demodulation while the current application is performed during before the IF demodulation. Despite the difference, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to recognize that the intentions of both are the same. Hence, knowing that the switching operation could be performed either before or the IF demodulator, it would also have been obvious to the ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made to modify Teichner so that switching operation could be alternatively performed before the IF demodulator.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 6 and 17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Jeon et al. (5,926,228) shows two tuners.

Belcher et al. (5,557,617) shows a plurality of tuners and demodulators.
